CALL FOR PAPERS - 2009

The Red River WS Conference focuses on topics related to Women's Studies, Gender Studies and Feminist Studies, including interdisciplinary, international and cross-cultural issues. The conference brings together scholars from the Red River Valley region and beyond to present their research and scholarship related to Women's Studies.

The 2009 Conference will be held:

Friday, November 6, 2009
9:00 am to 4:00 pm
Comstock Memorial Union
Minnesota State University Moorhead

Paper and sessions relevant to all topics related to Women's Studies, Gender Studies and Feminist Studies will be considered. Interdisciplinary research and upper-level student research presentations are encouraged. Submission by e-mail is preferred (as e-mail text or Word document). Deadline for proposals is October 1, 2009.

For individual paper proposals:

Proposals are invited on topics related to Women's Studies, Gender Studies and Feminist Studies. Papers/presentations should be no more than 20 minutes in length. Please submit a 500-word (maximum) proposal and include your name, institutional affiliation, and a contact address/e-mail. Submission by e-mail is preferred (as e-mail text or Word document).

For session proposals:

Sessions proposals, including roundtable discussions, are encouraged. Complete session proposals must include a brief summary of the session, abstracts of individual presentations, and names and contact information for all presenters. Sessions should be no more than 1 hour in length.

About the Conference:

The Red River Women's Studies Conference is a regional conference hosted by a consortium of Women's Studies programs in the Red River Valley including Minnesota State University Moorhead, North Dakota State University, and University of North Dakota. In its ninth year, the conference is an opportunity for scholars throughout the region to present their academic research and work in progress related to Women's and Gender Studies. Its aim is to provide an annual venue for academic dialogue on topics related to Women's Studies as well as to offer discussion of interdisciplinary and intersectional issues.
